Re: Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act

Dear Customer:

On August 14th 2008, the U.S. government passed the Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act (CPSIA), with the purpose of strengthening the enforcement of federal consumer product safety laws enforced by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC). Threadfast Apparel ("Threadfast") is aware of these legal requirements imposed by the CPSIA and further recognizes that consumer product safety is an issue of tremendous importance.

For this reason, Threadfast hereby assures its manufactured products are in compliance with the Flammable Fabrics Act, Federal Hazardous Substances Act, and the CPSIA through the performance and documentation of any product testing required by the CPSIA.

Threadfast shall provide, upon request, a General Certificate of Conformity (GCC), and Children's Product Certificate (CPC) for any product that is subject to any safety rule, ban, standard, regulation or law aforementioned. Please be advised that any certifications we provide are for the finished, blank products we produce. If any of our blank products is later altered or treated, in any way, by a third party, our testing and certifications will not apply to the decoration or additional treatments added to the garment.

Threadfast continues to monitor CPSIA developments and shall make all necessary adjustments to our program, in order to comply with all CPSC rules.

Please feel free to contact us should you have any questions regarding the safety of our products.

Sincerely,

Threadfast Apparel
